REQUEST FOR REVIEW

Pursuant to 47 C.F.R. § 54.719(c), Airnex Communications, Inc. (“Airnex”) requests that the Commission review the rejection by the Universal Service Administrative Company (“USAC”) of revisions to Form 499-A and related filings that Airnex submitted to USAC in order to correct misclassifications of revenues between the interstate and international jurisdictions, as reported in earlier Form 499-A filings for the three-year period from January 1, 1999 through December 31, 2002.¹ USAC’s rejection of these filings was made through the January 24, 2006, Administrator’s Decision on Remand, attached hereto as Exhibit 2.² As the title of that decision suggests, it was issued by USAC following a Commission order requiring

² Although the rejection is styled as a decision of the Administrator, which should be subject to review by the Board of Directors of the Administrator pursuant to 47 C.F.R. § 54.719(b) (see, also, Administrator’s Decision on Remand, p. 3 at footnote 9), USAC has advised Airnex that a direct appeal to the Commission pursuant to 47 C.F.R. § 54.719(c) is the only avenue available to Airnex for seeking relief. Out of caution, Airnex is submitting, concurrently with this request for review, an appeal of the decision to the USAC Board.

USAC to reconsider an earlier rejection of Airnex's Form 499-A revisions.³ The result of the Administrator's Decision on Remand would require Airnex to pay millions of dollars in Universal Service Fund ("USF") contributions that it has no realistic ability to pay and for which it truly and fairly should have no liability.

As Airnex explains in more detail below, the Administrator's Decision on Remand errs in concluding that Airnex failed to submit sufficient documentation for the revised classifications and, further, errs in concluding that USAC had no duty to request or obtain further explanation or documentation to the extent that USAC believed that Airnex's documentation was inadequate. Upon review, the Commission should correct USAC's errors by finding that the documentation and information submitted by Airnex meets the requirements of the Form 499-A Revision Order or, at the very least, by providing Airnex with a clearer specification of what showing is required of Airnex and a reasonable opportunity for Airnex to provide documentation or other information that meets those requirements.

I. STATEMENT OF INTEREST AND FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Airnex provides resold international and interstate long distance voice services pursuant to authority granted by the Commission and, therefore, is required to contribute to the USF. Since the inception of Airnex's service in April 1998, Airnex has focused primarily on the provision of international long distance voice service.⁴ In fact, at no time have Airnex's interstate revenues exceeded 8% of its combined interstate and international revenue totals in any year.⁵ Consequently, under the Commission's rules, Airnex's USF contributions for all periods from and including November 1999, through the present, should have been based solely on Airnex's interstate revenues, without consideration of any international revenues.⁶ However, Airnex's original filings for the period in question failed to properly distinguish between Airnex's interstate and international revenues but, instead, reported that all of Airnex's telecommunications revenues were interstate.⁷ As a result of these errors, Airnex was billed by USAC for USF contributions in amounts far exceeding Airnex's actual liability under the Commission's rules.⁸

After Airnex determined that its filings contained these errors, Airnex sought to file revised Form 499-A and related filings to correct the earlier failures to properly classify its revenues for the subject periods. In order to do so, Airnex was required to obtain revenue totals directly from its archived electronic billing records.⁹ This process, which entailed running the call detail records against the rating tables, and then querying the results to produce the revised revenue figures, was undertaken by Airnex's internal operations team in mid-2003.¹⁰ Once the revenue totals were developed for each year, they were inserted in the revised filings, and the filings were then submitted to USAC on October 23, 2003.¹¹

The revised filings were rejected by USAC on November 6, 2003, as untimely, and on November 25, 2003, Airnex filed a request for review of that rejection with the Commission.¹² On December 9, 2004, the Commission issued the Form 499-A Revision Order directing USAC to reconsider Airnex's revised filings, along with rejected 499-A filings of a number of other carriers. In that order, the Commission directed USAC "to revise universal contribution obligations as appropriate provided that: (1) the Petitioner has demonstrated good cause for submitting the revision beyond the one-year revision window; and (2) the Petitioner has provided 'an explanation of the cause for the change along with complete documentation showing how the revised figures derive from corporate financial records.'"¹³ The Commission explained, "USAC shall only revise contribution obligations to the extent that the carrier has provided accurate and legitimate reasons for filing late and for revising the obligation, in accordance with the existing Worksheet Instructions."¹⁴ The Commission also permitted carriers, such as Airnex, to supplement their earlier filings between the release date and the effective date of the order.¹⁵

After the Commission issued the order, Airnex provided a supplemental detailed explanation of the circumstances that gave rise the need to make the revised filings.¹⁶ However, other than certifying that the revised interstate and international revenue totals were derived

¹² Although the Administrator's Decision on Remand, at footnote 9, criticizes Airnex for appealing directly to the Commission rather than to the USAC Board, Airnex's doing so was based on explicit, unambiguous instructions in USAC's rejection letter that a direct appeal was an available option. (See, Exhibit 6.)

directly from Airnex's billing records, Airnex was not able to provide any further "documentation showing how the revised figures derive from corporate financial records." Again, Airnex did not keep its books of account in a manner that classified revenues by jurisdiction, and the only records of any nature that could be used to establish revenue classifications were its archived customer billing records, which were contained on tapes stored in numerous boxes.¹⁷ Airnex assumed that USAC did not want to receive boxes of undecipherable electronic billing records, but did note that the billing records could be made available and were auditable.¹⁸ In addition, Airnex offered to provide any further explanations and documentation that might be requested.¹⁹

On January 24, 2006, USAC once again rejected Airnex's filings. USAC agreed that Airnex had demonstrated sufficient cause for submitting revised Form 499-A worksheets and other filings,²⁰ but concluded that the filings should be rejected because Airnex had failed to provide sufficient "documentation derived from corporate financial records supporting the revised revenue and percentages of international revenue it seeks to reclassify."²¹ USAC did not, however, explain what sort of documentation it believed was missing. Moreover, although Airnex had offered to provide further explanations and respond to requests for additional information, USAC held that Airnex was not permitted to submit any further information after the effective date of the Form 499-A Revision Order, which supposedly precluded USAC from entertaining Airnex's offer.²²

Following receipt of the Administrator's Decision on Remand, Airnex conducted a further search of its records to determine if it had overlooked documentation, aside from the billing records themselves, that would have supported its position.²³ In so doing, Airnex discovered printouts of the billing record queries that were conducted in mid-2003 to establish the revenue entries for the revised Form 499-A filings.²⁴ These printouts show jurisdictionally-separated revenues on a month-by month, state-by-state basis for all the subject years, except for 1998.²⁵ However, Airnex was not aware that the printouts still existed when the supplemental filing was made and had no realistic ability, at that time, to even search for those work papers.²⁶ Moreover, as discussed, below, Airnex believes that these printouts are of only marginal relevance and would have added little in the way of substance to its earlier filings. Nevertheless, Airnex has included a copy of the printouts as an attachment to Exhibit 4 (Second Yamaji Declaration). Given adequate time, Airnex could re-query the 1998 records and obtain similar printouts for that period, if they were deemed relevant.²⁷

II. QUESTION PRESENTED FOR REVIEW

The questions presented for review are: (1) whether Airnex provided sufficient documentation showing how the revised figures derive from corporate financial records; and (2) whether, to the extent the Airnex's documentation is deemed insufficient, Airnex should be permitted a reasonable opportunity to submit further information and documentation to overcome any alleged deficiencies.

²³ Exhibit 4, Second Yamaji Declaration, ¶ 8.

²⁶ Id., ¶ 7.

²⁷ Id., ¶ 8.

For the reasons stated below, Airnex respectfully submits that the Commission should answer each of these questions in the affirmative.

A. Airnex Provided a Reasonably Sufficient Response to the Requirement for Documentation Showing How the Revised Revenue Figures Were Derived From Corporate Financial Records

Facially, the requirement of the Form 499-A Revision Order that a contributor seeking to submit revised Form 499-A filings provide “complete documentation showing how the revised figures derive from corporate financial records” seems clear. However, from the standpoint of a carrier, such as Airnex, that is not subject to a Uniform System of Accounts (“USOA”) requirement to separately account for revenues on a jurisdictional (intrastate, interstate, international) basis,²⁸ and that does not, in fact, maintain jurisdictionally separate accounting,²⁹ the showing demanded by the Form 499-A Revision Order is actually quite vague.

Airnex suspects that, in most cases, an error contained in a Form 499-A filing would be the result of a mistake in transcribing revenue data from a carrier’s books to the Form 499-A worksheet. In such a case, it seems fairly clear that the carrier would simply submit a revised worksheet accompanied by documentation of the original line item revenue account entries to show that the revised information is based on and supported by the carrier’s books. In addition, if the recorded revenues are assigned to jurisdictions on the Form 499-A worksheet based on defined “safe harbors” or other “allocation” methodologies,³⁰ it seems clear, as well, that documentation of the allocation methodology used also should be submitted. Alternatively, if an error contained in a Form 499-A filing was not due to a simple transcription mistake, but, instead, reflected an actual error contained in the carrier's books or subsidiary records, it still would seem to be a fairly simple matter, once the error is discovered, to identify the source and nature of the error and then provide "before and after" documentation, along with documentation of any "allocation" method that may have been used, to show how the revised Form 499-A revenue data are based on and supported by the corrected records.

²⁸ 47 C.F.R. § 32.4999(f) requires dominant carriers to maintain subsidiary revenue records on a jurisdictional basis. There is no such requirement for non-dominant interexchange carriers.

³⁰ See, e.g., “Instructions to the Telecommunications Reporting Worksheet,” FCC Form 499 (April 2004), p. 18-19.

However, where, as in Airnex's case, there are no accounting entries or other intermediate sources of revenue data, only the ultimate subsidiary billing records, and where revenue totals obtained from the billing records were transcribed directly to the Form 499-A worksheets, without use of any allocation process, just what, exactly, the carrier would need to submit to USAC in order to support a Form 499-A revision under the Form 499-A Revision Order is entirely unclear. Surely, neither the Commission nor USAC would expect, or want, the carrier to provide copies of the electronic media containing the records. Yet, there really is not much else that such a carrier could provide, other than the results of a query run against those records, which Airnex provided,³¹ along with a certification of the accuracy of those records, which Airnex provided,³² and an offer to make the records available for audit, which Airnex also provided.³³

Although, as noted above, Airnex apparently had more detailed printouts in storage, in actuality, the month-by-month, state-by-state details were, and continue to be, of little relevance to Airnex's revised filings. The only relevant numbers on those printouts are the annual revenue totals that were transcribed directly onto the revised Form 499-A worksheets, again, without using any sort of "allocation" methodology.

³¹ Administrator's Decision on Remand, p. 4.

³³ Id., p.5.

As Airnex had no intermediate accounting or other corporate financial records and was not required to keep such records, Airnex provided USAC with all of the documentation and information that Airnex, reasonably, should have been required to submit. Indeed, even if Airnex had had the luxury of additional time and resources to provide more information, it still would have been faced with the question of what other information or documentation actually could have been produced to further satisfy the requirements of the Form 499-A Revision Order.

The Administrator's Decision on Remand seems to suggest, at footnote 12, that more detailed financial information should have been provided, stating "Airnex provided USAC with significantly more financial information for 2002 (and later). This information supported the revision to Airnex's 2003 FCC Form 499-A which USAC accepted when it was filed in October 2003. However, the 2002 information provides insufficient support for changes to revenue allocations in prior years." Thus, one might surmise, based on this note, that if Airnex had provided this same level of detail in the financial statements that it submitted for earlier years, its revisions would have been accepted.

Yet, in truth, the 2002 financial information Airnex provided to USAC was not relevant to the revised 2003 FCC Form 499-A submission. Because that revision was submitted prior to December 1 of the year in which the original FCC Form 499-A was filed, there was no requirement that the revision be accompanied by a showing of any sort.³⁴ Moreover, the 2002 financial information does not contain one single jurisdictionally-separated entry or provide any basis whatsoever for deriving jurisdictionally-separated revenue totals.³⁵ Thus, Airnex cannot fathom how its provision of similarly detailed financial information for earlier years would have been helpful if that, indeed, is what USAC is suggesting in its footnote.

³⁵ The 2002 financial information that Airnex submitted to USAC provided a picture of Airnex's financial condition at the time in order to help emphasize the need to allow Airnex to file the earlier years' revisions.

In the end, because of the vagueness of the Form 499-A Revision Order's requirements (for a carrier in Airnex's circumstances), Airnex had no basis for discerning what sort of documentation, other than the explanations and certifications that it provided, was necessary. In fact, Airnex still has no basis, today, for understanding what sort of additional documentation it might be able to gin up would satisfy those requirements, assuming that Airnex were permitted a further opportunity to submit documentation.

For these reasons, Airnex respectfully submits that it should be deemed to have met the requirements of the Form 499-A Revision Order. After all, the billing records, from which the revenue entries on the revised worksheets were derived, are available and remain auditable.³⁶ Accordingly, there is no reason why USAC or anyone else should have any deep, on-going questions regarding their accuracy.

B. Airnex Should Be Provided a Further Opportunity to Submit Clarifying Information or Additional Documentation to the Overcome Any Deficiency in Its Prior Submissions.

As the foregoing discussion indicates, Airnex had, and still has, substantial difficulty understanding what more information it could have, and should have, provided to USAC. Indeed, it is apparent from USAC's glowing reference to Airnex's 2002 financials, that USAC does not have a crystal-clear idea, either, of what, specifically, USAC was supposed to be looking for under the terms of the Form 499-A Revision Order in the case of a carrier in Airnex's position.

³⁶ Exhibit 4, Second Yamaji Declaration, ¶ 8.

Airnex concedes that, despite the opaqueness of that order, USAC nonetheless was charged with the responsibility for assuring itself that bogus revisions were not accepted. Thus, the lack of clear standards for submissions did not excuse Airnex from the burden of assuring USAC of the accuracy of the revisions.

At the same time, however, it was wholly unreasonable for USAC not to have communicated its questions or concerns to Airnex and, then, allowed Airnex an opportunity to respond to those questions or concerns at some point during the full year in which USAC had Airnex's filings under review. USAC had to be aware that the language of the documentation requirement was vague and that there were no discernible, published or otherwise available standards or criteria that Airnex could have followed to ensure that its filing passed muster. Under such circumstances, to have assumed that a carrier should have been able to anticipate and provide, leaving no loose ends, the full extent of the showing that USAC would consider requisite to the acceptance of revisions was entirely unrealistic. Instead, USAC should have assumed that if the information it received from a carrier was unclear or inadequate, such lack of clarity or inadequacy most likely was a result of the way the documentation standard was written, and, for that reason, followed up with a simple telephone call, letter, or e-mail to the carrier seeking clarification of the carrier's showing or asking the carrier to furnish specific additional information or documentation to enable USAC to meet its review obligations. Indeed, it is possible that such communications could have helped USAC to clear up any misconceptions of its own. This is the way other businesses and government agencies work, including the FCC and even the IRS.

USAC asserts, nevertheless, that the provisions of the Form 499-A Revision Order establishing the effective date of the order as the deadline for carriers to submit their filings, including supporting documentation, precluded Airnex from being able to submit information and documentation in response to USAC requests after that date. Presumably, this also operated, in USAC's view, to preclude it from seeking clarification or further information from Airnex. However, there is nothing in the order that can be deemed, even remotely, to be a requirement or an expectation, on the part of the Commission, that USAC sequester itself and refrain from all substantive communications with Airnex or other filers. Had the Commission harbored such intent, surely the Commission would have clearly communicated it in the order; but, the Commission did not do so.

Obviously, the complexity of the facts and the high stakes involved in cases such as this do not lend themselves well to being considered in a virtual communications vacuum, which, essentially, was the effect of coupling the vague documentation requirements of the Form 499-A Revision Order with USAC's self-imposed sequestration policy.³⁷ Thus, for USAC to take such a narrow, and self-limiting view of its decisionmaking responsibility was entirely unreasonable.

Indeed, the procedure followed by USAC operated to deny Airnex a fair and reasonable opportunity to be heard in this matter. Airnex was provided only a very vague initial indication of the showing that would be required in order to avoid liability for millions of dollars in fees that it did not truly owe, was never informed of the criteria that would be used to decide the adequacy of its showing, and, for these reasons, was never provided a full and fair opportunity to submit data or information or otherwise be heard before USAC issued its decision. What is more, there is nothing in USAC's decision from which Airnex, the Commission, or any reviewing court could actually discern precisely why Airnex lost its case. As a consequence, USAC's decision can only be characterized as arbitrary and capricious.

³⁷ Airnex assumes that USAC did not engage in direct or indirect substantive communications with any other carrier.

Allowing USAC's decision to stand would be, itself, arbitrary and capricious, and would deny Airnex its fundamental right to procedural due process. Accordingly, to the extent that Airnex's prior showing is deemed insufficient, the Commission should provide Airnex with a clearer specification of what showing is required and provide Airnex a further, reasonable opportunity to provide documentation or other information that meets those requirements.

C. USAC's Acceptance of Airnex's Revised Form 499-A Filings and the Re-Calculation of Airnex's USF Contribution Liability Is Required in Order to Meet the Requirements of Federal Law and the Commission's Own Rules

In Texas Office of Public Utility Counsel v. FCC,³⁸ the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals rejected and remanded for further consideration the Commission's initial USF contribution policy that exempted international carriers from USF contribution requirements only if they had zero interstate revenues. The Court held that the Commission's policy was inequitable and discriminatory to the extent it resulted in carriers that specialize in providing international telephone service having to pay more in USF contributions than they recover in interstate charges.³⁹

On remand, the Commission modified its policy in response to the Court's criticism and established a new contribution threshold for internationally-focused carriers.⁴⁰ Under the new rule, such carriers were required to include their international revenues in the USF contribution base only if their interstate revenues exceeded 8% of the combined interstate and international revenue total.⁴¹ Subsequently, the threshold was raised to 12%.⁴²

As stated above, since its inception, Airnex's interstate revenues have never comprised more than 8% percent of Airnex's combined interstate and international revenues. Thus, requiring Airnex to contribute to the USF based on its prior over-statements of interstate revenues would be contrary both to the Commission's current rule and to the basic standards of fairness and nondiscrimination that led the Court of Appeals to reverse the Commission's prior policy.

Accordingly, compliance with the Commission's rule and federal law, as determined by the Court of Appeals, requires that USAC accept Airnex's Form 499-A revisions and then re-bill Airnex for USF contributions based on the corrected revenue statements.

As explained above, USAC's USF billings to Airnex were based on grossly-inaccurate revenue reports, and would require erroneous contributions by Airnex to the USF. Indeed, if USAC's decision to reject Airnex's proffered Form 499-A revisions is allowed to stand, Airnex would be forced to pay well over 10 times more than it should. Although Airnex is at fault for making inaccurate filings, requiring it to pay an amount that is so far out of line with its properly-calculated liability would be egregiously inconsistent with the statutory requirement that USF contributions be equitable, as well as being inconsistent with any traditional notion of justice. Therefore, Airnex submits that USAC's decision to reject Airnex's revised Form 499-A filings must be reversed.

III. STATEMENT OF RELIEF SOUGHT

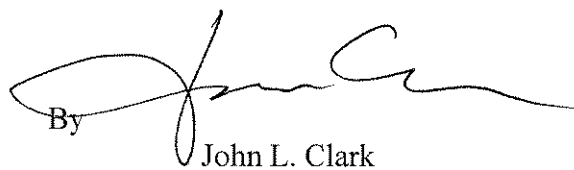

Airnex requests that the Commission reverse USAC's January 24, 2006, decision rejecting Airnex's revised filings, and that the Commission either: (1) direct USAC to accept those filings and issue corrected USF contribution invoices to Airnex based on the information reported in these revised forms; or, (2) provide Airnex with a clear statement of the criteria upon which a decision to reject or accept such filings will be based and afford Airnex a reasonable time to submit further documentation or other information in response to such criteria, including an opportunity to respond to concerns or shortcomings that USAC perceives in Airnex's showing.

IV. CONCLUSION

Under the circumstances, USAC's rejection of Airnex's revisions was improper. The standard applied by USAC in considering the adequacy of Airnex's documentation was extremely vague and was not applied by USAC in a manner consistent with the purpose of the documentation requirement. USAC was not barred by the Commission from communicating with Airnex in order to seek clarification or further information regarding Airnex's showing, and its failure to do so resulted in an outcome that is at odds with the underlying purposes of applicable law and is completely inconsistent with due process, justice, and equity. Therefore, Airnex requests that this Request for Review be granted.

Re: Airnex Communications (Filer ID # 818610)

Dear Mr. Clark:

Airnex Communications, Inc. (Airnex) filed certain documentation with the Universal Service Administrative Company (USAC) in connection with the submission of certain revised annual Telecommunications Reporting Worksheets (Worksheets or FCC Form 499-As) for the years 1999 through 2002 which reported revenue for the years 1998 through 2001 (Revised Worksheets).¹ Pursuant to an order issued on December 9, 2004 by the Wireline Competition Bureau (WCB) of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC or Commission),² USAC has reviewed Airnex's filing and supporting documentation. For reasons explained below, USAC rejects Airnex's Revised Worksheets because Airnex has failed to provide adequate supporting financial records as required by the FCC.

Background

FCC regulations require carriers to file Telecommunications Reporting Worksheets annually and require USAC to bill contributors based on reported revenues. See generally

¹ Airnex did not submit a revised 1999 Form 457 reporting 1998 revenue but did submit the optional amendment to the 1999 Form 457 and Form 499-S that was due December 1, 1999 (Form 457/499-S Addendum). See Common Carrier Bureau Announces Release of Forms for Amending March 1999 Universal Service Worksheet (FCC Form 457) and September 1999 Telecommunications Reporting Worksheet (FCC Form 499-S), CC Docket No. 96-45, Public Notice, 15 FCC Rcd. 8339 (1999). This form potentially affects USF billings from November 1999 through June 2000.

² See Federal-State Joint Board on Universal Service; 1998 Biennial Regulatory Review – Streamlined Contributor Reporting Requirements Associated with Administration of Telecommunications Relay Service, North American Numbering Plan, Local Number Portability, and Universal Service Support Mechanisms; Changes to the Board of Directors of the National Exchange Carrier Association, Inc., CC Docket Nos. 96-45, 98-171, 97-21, Order, 20 FCC Rcd. 1012 (WCB 2004) (Form 499-A Revision Order).

47 C.F.R. Part 54. FCC regulations have never required USAC to accept untimely-filed revisions to Worksheets. However, in order to improve the accuracy of reported revenue, in September 1999, the USAC Board of Directors (USAC Board) authorized USAC to allow carriers to file revised Worksheets after the original due date, except that, with respect to revised Worksheets that result in a decrease in contributions to the universal service fund (USF), such filings were permitted only for a period of up to one year from the initial filing due date.

In December 2004, the FCC formally adopted a one-year deadline for Worksheet revisions where such revisions would, among other things, decrease contributions to the USF.³ In adopting the one-year deadline, the FCC directed USAC to consider revised Worksheets from prior years, provided USAC received those revisions either (a) between the release date of the Order, December 9, 2004, and its effective date, January 10, 2005 (the Open Period), or (b) prior to the release date of the Order where USAC had not yet acted on the filing. With respect to cases pending at the FCC presenting the Worksheet filing deadline issue, the FCC remanded those cases to USAC for limited re-consideration. As the FCC explained:

To the extent that a request for review encompasses issues in addition to revised 499-A issues, we remand to USAC only the portion of the request that deals with revised 499-A filings, and retain the remainder of the request for disposition by the Bureau or Commission.⁴

In considering revised Worksheets from prior years, the FCC directed USAC to consider whether companies established “good cause” for submitting revisions beyond the one-year revision window and provided companies with pending revisions a limited opportunity to supplement the record during the Open Period.⁵ The FCC provided that, to establish good cause, for each Worksheet revision submitted, a company must provide:

- A satisfactory explanation of the cause for any changes; and
- Supporting documentation reasonably sufficient to establish accuracy by showing how the revised information derives from corporate financial records.⁶

Procedural Background

Airnex timely filed its 1999 Form 457/499-S Addendum, and 2000, 2001, and 2002 Forms 499-A. On or about September 6, 2003, Airnex received a “Final Demand and Notice of Debt Transfer” from the FCC relating to billed and unpaid USF contributions.

On September 16, 2003, Airnex, through counsel, responded by letter to the FCC explaining, among other things, that Airnex's USF contributions were overstated due to Airnex's misclassification of international revenues on its 1999-2003 Worksheets. Airnex indicated that this misclassification was caused by a third party "compliance" vendor and had resulted in a "grossly-overstated contribution base."⁷

On October 23, 2003, Airnex filed the Revised Worksheets with USAC.⁸ On November 6, 2003, USAC rejected the Revised Worksheets as untimely filed. On November 25, 2003, Airnex appealed this decision to the FCC (FCC Appeal).

On December 9, 2004, the Form 499-A Revision Order remanded Airnex's FCC Appeal to USAC.⁹ In a letter dated January 6, 2005, pursuant to that Order, Airnex filed supplemental information with USAC and provided copies of the Revised Worksheets.¹⁰ Airnex explained:

[T]he various worksheet revisions . . . correct prior misclassifications of revenues as interstate that should have been classified as international. In addition, each [Worksheet] corrects other misstatement of reported revenues. The corrected revenue classifications were derived directly from the Company's archived billing records, which indicate origination and termination points for all calls. The corrected revenue amounts were derived directly from the Company's financial books of account. Year-end financial statement for each year of reported revenues were [previously provided to USAC]. The Company's financial and billing records are available for review and audit. In addition, the Company will provide any further explanations and documentation that may be requested.¹¹

⁷ See Letter from John L. Clark, Goodin, MacBride, Squeri, Ritchie & Day, LLP, Counsel for Airnex, to the Federal Communications Commission (Sept. 16, 2003).

⁹ Airnex apparently filed the FCC Appeal pursuant to 47 C.F.R. § 54.719(c). See Airnex FCC Appeal at 1. Section 54.719(c), however, provides for appeal to the FCC of actions taken by (1) a USAC programmatic division, as defined by § 54.701(c) (schools & libraries; rural healthcare, high cost/low income); (2) a Committee of the USAC Board, as defined by § 54.705 (schools & libraries; rural healthcare, high cost/low income); or (3) the USAC Board as defined in § 54.703. The action being appealed in this instance – the rejection of a Worksheet as untimely – is an action by the USAC Billing and Collection division which is not one of the entities identified in § 54.719(c). Actions by the Billing and Collection division are appealable to the USAC Board pursuant to § 54.719(b). Nevertheless, because the FCC has expressly remanded Airnex's FCC Appeal to USAC, see Form 499-A Revision Order, Appendix A, USAC considers this appeal as if it had been properly and timely filed with USAC.

¹⁰ See Letter from John L. Clark, Goodin, MacBride, Squeri, Ritchie & Day, LLP, Counsel for Airnex, to USAC (Jan. 6, 2005) (incorrectly dated January 6, 2004). The Revised Worksheets were identical to what Airnex submitted to USAC on October 23, 2003, except that the Form 457/499-S Addendum was modified to correct the transposition of percentages reported in boxes (b) and (c). See id. at 1.

Discussion and Explanation of Decision:

Airnex seeks to revise total revenue and correct percent allocations of interstate and international revenue for Worksheets from 1999 through 2002 (reporting revenue from the years 1998 through 2001). In support of Airnex's proposed revisions, Airnex explains how it came to misclassify its international revenue during these years and provides financial records consisting of year-end summary income statements for 1999, 2000, and 2001. These income statements have a "Direct Billing Revenue" line item but do not otherwise contain information concerning specific sources or classifications of revenue.¹²

Significantly, the FCC established the Limited International Revenue Exemption (LIRE) in November 1999 which allows carriers with international revenue above a certain percentage of combined interstate and international revenue to contribute to the USF based only on their interstate revenues.¹³ Airnex asserts that, but for its misclassification of international revenue, Airnex would have qualified for LIRE.

The FCC, in remanding Airnex's FCC Appeal, directed USAC to consider two factors in establishing whether "good cause" exists to accept Airnex's Revised Worksheets: (1) the carrier's "explanation of the cause for the change"; and (2) "documentation showing how the revised figures derive from corporate financial records."¹⁴ Airnex provides a reasonable explanation but fails to provide adequate supporting financial documentation.

The FCC, in requiring supporting financial documentation, established a higher standard of proof than the self-certification which is sufficient for initial form filings. This is particularly important in situations potentially involving LIRE because relatively small variations in revenue percentages may have disproportionately large impacts on the universal service contribution base. An income statement summary with no detail regarding the source of revenue supported by a certified statement regarding the type and amount of revenue to be re-classified – such as Airnex provides here – is insufficient. Moreover, the FCC provided that the Open Period was Airnex's sole remaining opportunity to submit supporting documentation.¹⁵ Because the FCC limited when supporting documentation must be submitted in order to be considered by USAC,

¹³ See In the Matter of Federal-State Joint Board on Universal Service, Sixteenth Order on Reconsideration in CC Docket No. 96-45, Eighth Report and Order in CC Docket 96-45, Sixth Report and Order in CC Docket 96-262, 15 FCC Rcd. 1679 (1999).

¹⁵ See Form 499-A Revision Order, 20 FCC Rcd. at 1018, ¶ 14 (additional supplemental information must be submitted to USAC during the Open Period).

Airnex's offer to provide additional information "upon request," without actually submitting that information to USAC, is also insufficient.

To establish good cause for untimely Worksheet revisions pursuant to the Form 499-A Revision Order, Airnex was required to submit some type of documentation derived from corporate financial records supporting the revised revenue and percentages of international revenue it seeks to reclassify. Airnex did not do so and so USAC must reject the Revised Worksheets.

Decision of the Administrator: Airnex's request that USAC accept Airnex's Revised Worksheets for the years 1999 through 2002, reporting 1998 through 2001 revenue is denied.

To the extent the FCC Appeal raised issues other than USAC's acceptance of an untimely-filed Worksheet, those issues remain pending with the FCC.¹⁶

If you disagree with USAC's decision, you may file a further appeal with the FCC. Detailed instructions for filing appeals are available at:

USAC

DECLARATION OF SHIGE YAMAJI

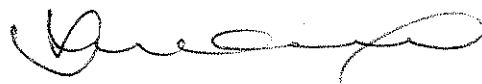

I, Shige Yamaji, declare:

1. I am the President and CEO of Airnex Communications ("Airnex").
2. Since the inception of Airnex's service in April 1998, the company has focused primarily on the provision of international long distance voice service, and at no time since the company's inception have Airnex's interstate revenues exceeded 8% of its combined interstate and international revenue totals in any year.
3. Airnex relied on a third-party vendor, Telecom Compliance Services ("TCS"), whose address is 1720 Windward Concourse, Suite 250, Alpharetta, Georgia 30005, to prepare these filings.
4. Although I signed the certification block on each of the Form 499-A filings, I relied on TCS to ensure that the filings were completely properly and did not independently review them before returning them to TCS for submission to the Universal Service Administrative Company ("USAC").
5. I now know that Airnex's original Form 499-A filings submitted in 2000, 2001, and 2002 failed to properly distinguish between Airnex's interstate and international revenues and, instead, incorrectly reported that all of Airnex's telecommunications revenues were interstate, which resulted in Airnex's being billed for Universal Service Fund ("USF") contributions that were far in excess of what it should have been billed for.
6. After Airnex received huge, unexpected bills for Universal Service Fund contributions based on the incorrect Form 499-A filings, I directed various management personnel to follow up with USAC and attempt to determine both the cause of billings and to work out any necessary payment arrangements. However, due to distractions caused by pressures of responding to competition and various financial challenges, this job was never completed. Consequently, Airnex continued to rely on TCS to prepare its filings and I continued to certify the filings as accurate without engaging in any independent review until the spring of this year.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed as of the date shown below.

DECLARATION OF SHIGE YAMAJI

I, Shige Yamaji, declare:

1. I am the President and CEO of Airnex Communications (“Airnex”).
2. This declaration is being submitted in support of Airnex’s appeal of the USAC Administrator’s rejection of amended Form 499-A filings for the years, 1999, 2000, 2001 and 2002.
3. Airnex did not maintain corporate financial records for those years that classified total revenues by jurisdiction; i.e. interstate, international, or intrastate. Therefore, after Airnex discovered that its original Form 499-A filings with USAC had mis-classified all revenues as interstate, the only way to make corrections was to obtain revenue totals for each jurisdiction and year directly from Airnex’s archived customer billing records.
4. This was done in August, 2003, by Airnex’s Sacramento operations department. The billing tapes were retrieved from storage and then used to generate the revenue information that was needed to correct the Form 499-A filings. This was a very time-consuming task because the un-rated call detail records (“CDRs”) were on many tapes and each tape had to be re-run against the archived rate tables, with the results then being queried to produce the actual revenue totals that were inserted in the Form 499-A revisions.
5. Shortly after the revenue totals were generated, Airnex’s Sacramento operations department was shut down in connection with a restructuring and downsizing of Airnex’s organization. All operations department tasks were transferred to Airnex’s main office in San Ramon, California, but certain customer service functions remained in Sacramento.

The billing tapes were left in boxes within a storage space annexed to the Sacramento office.

6. During this same period of time, Airnex was struggling, with a significantly reduced and inexperienced staff, to maintain its regular business operations and to address efforts by USAC and the FCC to collect USF billings that were based on Airnex's original Form 499-A filings. Our primary focus with regard to the USF billings was to negotiate a payment plan for the amounts of the USF billings that Airnex believed were actually due, while we tried to obtain adjustments to the billings based on revised Form 499-A filings. We were aware that the revised forms would most likely be rejected as untimely and that an appeal probably would be needed. So, we spent the majority of our time and efforts preparing the documentation and information that was being requested by USAC in order to allow Airnex to enter into a repayment plan and delay collection efforts that could have forced Airnex out of business or into bankruptcy.

7. When the FCC ruled in December 2004 that USAC should re-consider its rejection of Airnex's and other companies' revised 499-A filings, I was in the process of leaving the country for China, Japan, and the Philippines on business that was very important to Airnex and could not return until mid-January. I worked as best I could with Airnex's attorney to try to prepare information to explain why the revisions were necessary and provide any other documentation that would help our case. But, all managers who had knowledge of the work that was done earlier had left the company, and the billing tapes and any related information were contained in piles of boxes in the Sacramento storage space. We had no person who had knowledge of where any documents were or even what to look for. In fact, I, personally, was not aware at the time that there was any revenue documentation other than Airnex's actual billing tapes.

8. When USAC rejected Airnex's filings in January, 2006, I, again, was traveling out of the country. However, on my return, I was able to personally search through the boxes of stored billing tapes and found a print-out from the query that had been run against the billing records two and a half years earlier. These workpapers, which are attached as Exhibit A, show revenues, by jurisdiction, on a month-by-month basis for each of the years from 1999 through 2002. A similar query was performed at a different time to obtain 1998 revenues by jurisdiction, which were included in amendments to 1999 Form 457 and Form 499-S filings that were filed with USAC. However, I was not able to locate any print-outs or other workpapers for 1998. Instead, the only records that Airnex has are the actual electronic billing records. Airnex is continuing to maintain these records in storage and, given sufficient time, should be able to perform another query for details of the 1998 revenues if required. However, with Airnex's greatly reduced staffing, this would be a difficult and time-consuming project.

9. Airnex has met its obligations under its payment plan with USAC and has kept current on all USF billings, other than those that are the subject of Airnex's appeal.

10. If the USAC decision is upheld, Airnex would not have the ability to pay the amounts billed by USAC and could be forced into bankruptcy or out of business.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed as of the date shown below.

Universal Service Administrative Company
ATTN: Form 499-A Revision Order
2000 L Street, N.W., Suite 200
Washington, DC 20036

Re: Airnex Communications, Inc.; Filer 499 ID 818610

On behalf of our client, Airnex Communications, Inc. (the "Company"), we are providing this letter, in accordance with the FCC's Form 499-A Revision Order, to supplement the Company's October 23, 2003 filing of the following documents:

- (1) corrected 2002 FCC Form 499A Telecommunications Reporting Worksheet
- (2) corrected 2001 FCC Form 499A Telecommunications Reporting Worksheet
- (3) corrected 2000 FCC Form 499A Telecommunications Reporting Worksheet
- (4) Amendment to March 1999 Universal Service Worksheet (FCC Form 457)

The purpose of this letter is: (i) to submit a revised Amendment to March Universal Service Worksheet (FCC Form 457); and (ii) provide further explanation for the Company's prior submissions of corrected FCC Form 499 A and Form 457 worksheets.

(i) The enclosed revised Amended Form 457 merely corrects the interstate and international percentages of revenues shown in boxes (b) and (c). These percentages were inadvertently reversed on the form that was filed by the Company on October 23, 2003. There is no change to boxes (c) or (d), which show the actual interstate and international revenue amounts.

(ii) As indicated in the Company's October 23, 2003 filing, the various worksheet revisions have been submitted in order to correct prior misclassifications of revenues as interstate that should have been classified as international. In addition, each Form 499-A corrects other misstatements of reported revenues. The corrected revenue classifications were derived directly from the Company's archived billing records, which indicate origination and termination points for all calls. The corrected revenue amounts were derived directly from the Company's financial books of account. Year-end financial statements for each year of reported revenues were included in the October 23, 2003 filing. The Company's financial and billing records are available for review and audit. In addition, the Company will provide any further explanations and documentation that may be requested.

The Company's need to file the corrected worksheets arises from the fact that the revenue misclassifications have resulted in very substantial over-assessments of USF liability. Since the inception of Airnex's service in April 1998, Airnex has focused primarily on the provision of international long distance voice service. In fact, at no time have Airnex's interstate revenues exceeded 8% of its combined interstate and international revenue totals in any year; nor, has Airnex ever imposed a USF recovery or similar fee on its customers. Consequently, under the Commission's rules, Airnex's USF contributions for all periods from and including November 1999, through the present, should have been based solely on Airnex's interstate revenues, without consideration of any international revenues.

Unfortunately, Airnex's original Form 499-A filings, and the Amended Form 457 for the periods in question failed to properly distinguish between Airnex's interstate and international revenues and, instead, reported that all of Airnex's telecommunications revenues were interstate. In addition, the filings misstated actual revenue totals. As a result of these errors, Airnex was billed for USF contributions in amounts far exceeding Airnex's actual liability under the Commission's rules. Airnex estimates that it was over-billed by well over $2,000,000, and that its USF liability actually was in the range of approximately $117,000 for the subject period.¹

At the times the original documents were prepared, Airnex's management was extremely distracted by the pressures of competition and other financial challenges. Competition in retail international calling was forcing drastic retail price reductions for the Company (70%, on average) during the 2000 to 2003 period; but, the Company's wholesale prices were dropping at a much slower pace (about 40%) during this same period. In addition, presumably due to a generally sluggish economy and financial problems being faced by the Company's predominantly-immigrant customers, the Company was experiencing slowing payments and increasing delinquencies. At the same time as the Company's profit margins were being squeezed, changes in the industry placed greater operational burdens on the Company due to increased numbers of network outages, international line quality issues, and other operational problems resulting from the general downturn in the telecommunications industry.

In response, the Company was forced to both downsize and shift its resources significantly toward sales and operations, and away from administrative support, in order to attempt to maintain cashflow, which was critical to the Company's survival. Instead of handling tax and regulatory compliance matters internally, the Company turned entirely to outside vendors to handle nearly all of these matters. In the cases of its Universal Service worksheets, the ¹ Airnex entered into a contribution payment plan agreement providing for the installment payments of the estimated liability and has timely made all payments required under that plan.

Company relied on Telecom Compliance Services ("TCS"), based in Alpharetta, Georgia, to properly prepare the filings.

Although the Company's chief executive officer, Shige Yamaji, signed the worksheets on the Company's behalf, he relied on TCS's representations that the sheets were properly prepared and signed them blindly, as he was forced to do in the cases of hundreds of other regulatory and tax filings.

When the Company began to receive billings based on the erroneous filings, Mr. Yamaji directed Company management employees to follow up with TCS and the Universal Service Fund administrator to resolve the apparent problems and to work out any necessary payment arrangements. The Company's records show that calls were made to the administrator and TCS, and that Company personnel repeatedly attempted look into and identify the reasons for the very high USF billings. However, during the period from 2000-2003, Airnex experienced repeated departures of individuals responsible for this task: its initial Controller left the company in 2000; his successor left in 2001; then the Company's Accounting manager left in 2002; finally, its VP Finance left in early 2003. In addition, as noted above, Airnex was forced to terminate a number of lower-level accounting and administrative personnel. These departures and downsizing, along with the on-going financial and operational distractions that everyone in the Company faced, resulted in substantial inconsistency and disconnect in the work performed in the accounting and compliance area. Consequently, the length of tenure and degree of commitment that was required to fully understand the USF billing issue and to take the steps necessary to resolve the situation did not come to fruition until late 2002 when the errors in the Company's Form 499-A filings were identified as the potential source of problem.² At that time, the Company asked TCS for assistance in rectifying the problem and believed that TCS was doing so. In fact, the Company received correspondence from TCS that it had resolved the Regulatory Fee billing issue, and the Company believed that TCS was working on the USF issue as well. In the meantime, the Company also continued to rely on TCS to prepare and file the Company's 2003 Form 499-A.

In June 2003, the Company finally reached a full understanding of the issues, but, by then, had been advised by TCS that it was too late to file amended Form 499-A forms for prior periods, including 2002. Mr. Yamaji contacted counsel and, since then, has worked hard to rectify Airnex's failures to properly identify its revenues and remit USF contributions. In furtherance of this effort, Airnex prepared revised Form 499-A filings for all subject periods, and the Amendment to 1999 Form 457, all based on actual archived call data records and financial books of account. In addition, the Company filed a revised 2003 Form 499-A, and made estimated USF contribution payments, including estimated interest, for each quarter of 2003 (for the most part based on its estimates of liability, as USF billings were based on the erroneous 2003 Form 499-A figures due to the Company's inability to submit a correct Form 499-Q filing until later in the year).

² Discovery of the errors actually resulted from the FCC's 2002 Regulatory Fee billing, which was based on reported combined interstate and international revenues of $90 million, rather than the Company's actual revenues of $9 million. Once this error was discovered, Company personnel delved further into the Form 499-A and determined that revenue classification errors had also been made.

For these reasons, we believe that the Company's USF obligations should be revised in accordance with the corrected filings. Thank you very much for your consideration. If there are any questions or any need for further information, please contact me.

Very truly yours,

John L. Clark
